Jill Alison Ganon, Sandy Gillis : At Home Pasadena before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised At Home Pasadena:

2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Poor executionBy J. ChangThey crammed in too many photographs, many too small, many just not great shots, and many missed moments to connect the text and image. (If you're going to talk about an interesting element in a home, why isn't there a complimentary photograph?) Also, the image formatting isn't reader friendly - all the photo collages are a real chore to look at. I like more wide shots, this has too many vignette close-ups. The text is OK. If you're a fan of seeing quirks like "fantabulous" in print, you might get a bigger kick out of it than me.I wouldn't recommend this book at all. Sorry. As a Pasadenan, I really wanted to like it, but, NO!0 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Brand new bookBy EWMThis book though sold as used was as new!! Very happy with theservice - very speedy; couldn't have been better

At Home Pasadena is the first book to showcase the range and diversity of the San Gabriel Valleys renowned homes and gardens. With lush color photographs and evocative text, the book celebrates how Pasadenans live at homewhere they cook, eat, sleep, work, play, socialize, garden, grow, learn, collect, retreat, dress, bathe and even save the world.

About the AuthorJill Alison Ganon is a co-author of Hometown Pasadena and the author of several books for HarperCollins, including Twins! Pregnancy, Birth and the First Year of Life. A former managing editor of American Bungalow, she lives in an Arts Crafts house in Southwest Pasadena. Sandy Gillis is a co-author of Hometown Pasadena as well as a wholesale florist, garden consultant and all-around horticulturist. She lives in Altadena, where she grows roses and raises chickens and children (not necessarily in that order). Jennifer Cheung is a third-generation commercial photographer and graduate of Art Center College of Design. Some of her clients include Garden Design, AOL, Sunset and Behr Paints. She and her partner, Steven Nilsson, work together on various editorial and advertising projects. Photographer Steven Nilsson was born and raised in Minneapolis and came west to attend Art Center College of Design. Some of his clients include Travel Leisure, Los Angeles and MGM. He and his partner, Jennifer Cheung, often collaborate on assignments. They live in Pasadena's Bungalow Heaven neighborhood.
