Four Stars By Martin Jones Great book 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Gorgeous Book of Superb Craftmanship By oldladyloomis I was familiar with the builder of most of the cabins in this book. He is genius and it shows throughout this book.

Each gorgeous log home shown here was built with reclaimed timbers that were hand-hewn at least a century ago. The homes vary from small to large, and cover layouts from "erected as found" to modern configurations. One thing they all have in common, though, is that they look the way log homes are supposed to look. Dove-tailed corners, weathered barn wood, antique heart pine, and ancient beams, logs, and posts were used abundantly in their construction. If you're hoping to build such a home for yourself, or expand your existing home with a log addition, this book will provide help and inspiration. Each of the 27 projects featured includes a floor plan perfect for today's lifestyles, while maintaining the integrity of log home construction and preserving the great timbers that sheltered our forebearers.

From the Author I have spent the past year in awe of the houses in this book. Some are immense, with great vaulted ceilings, and some are much smaller, with great vaulted ceilings. But all of them are absolutely captivating. The pictures of both the interiors and exteriors are gorgeous, and packed with decorating and building ideas. The perfect coffee table book, whether or not a log home is your cup of tea. About the Author Ferris Robinson writes regular columns for various publications and has published three cookbooks. She lives in a log home in North Georgia with her husband and three sons.
