Ziba Kashef : Backyards for Kids: Playhouses, Sandboxes, Tree Forts, Swing Sets, Sports Areas, and More before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Backyards for Kids: Playhouses, Sandboxes, Tree Forts, Swing Sets, Sports Areas, and More:

8 of 8 people found the following review helpful. mostly ideas and photos, no detailed plans By Ignacio Z. You will not find detailed plans. Has nice photos from several angles, sometimes sketches. No material lists. Most cases you have to figure out how to build the project. Still, the book is OK with very nice ideas. 14 of 15 people found the following review helpful. very disappointed By Stephanie Raymond I was very disappointed with this book. I thought there'd be more playhouses and better instructions on how to construct a playhouse. This was more of an advertisement type book. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. ## GONA BEE REAL BIZZZY

Give them room to roam outdoors and fun places to play and you`ll create backyard memories that will last a lifetime--with the added benefit of getting kids away from their computers and video games. Like its successful predecessor, Kids` Places to Play, Backyards for Kids is loaded with ideas and how-to instruction for building projects like swing sets and treehouses, with innovative ideas for integrating play areas into the overall landscape design that adults will appreciate as well. Author Ziba Kashef, who has a young son, was editor in chief of Pregnancy magazine and was also previously on the editorial staff at McCall`s and Parenting magazines. Features: Step-by-step photos and instructions to help readers build numerous structures from scratch, as well as detailed tips on how to assemble some of the typical play structure kits available today, including a play set with swings and a pre-fab log cabin playhouse More landscaping advice on kid-friendly gardens and plants, as well as plants to avoid A strong focus on promoting physical activities--from basketball and baseball and soccer to skateboarding and trampolines--by creating fun and adventurous outdoor areas that kids will want to choose over electronic entertainment
