Pulp any remaining copies and send me a refund.2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. High quality bookBy Jennifer and Mial flipped through this book at the San Francisco airport's museum gift shop but didn't have time to stand in line and buy it. I've been thinking about it since and will buy it today -- beautiful photographs and good quality overall.

Highly successful title, revised and updated with new contentFeatures work by Dean Nota, Swatt | Miers, Jim Jennings, Scott Johnson, Kim Coleman, Craig Steely, Steven Shortridge and Jonathan Feldman among othersCalifornia Cool is a journey that takes you through Southern California's beach towns, to the rolling surrounds of San Francisco Bay, and to the lush vineyards of Napa and Sonoma, this book examines residential design in both urban and rural settings.Russell Abraham's striking architectural images and insightful writing give a unique human face to the architecture and their works. This revised edition includes new projects that complement and update the beauty that is California style.

About the AuthorRussell Abraham is one of the leading architectural photographers and emerging architectural writers in the United States. He has the unique ability both to write about and to photograph architecture in an incisive way. His work has appeared in numerous books and trade journals on architecture and interior design. He has mentored and trained many well known architectural photographers practicing today. This book is the fifth he has either written or photographed a significant part of and the second that he has created in its entirety. As a young man, Abraham migrated west from his native Pennsylvania to attend the University of California, Berkeley, where he earned degrees in architecture and design. Along the way, he found peering through the camera lens more interesting than peering at the drafting table. He started his professional career as a photojournalist, but was drawn back to architecture early on. Over the years, he has worked with many of the West Coast's leading architectural firms. He enjoys being part of the creative process and has an insider's view of architecture.
