Although, I thought I knew the District well, this book proves other wise. The places, photography, and descriptions have opened a District that I never knew; a beautifully described, professionally pictured Book that has given me the desire to return to the District one last time, using the book as a guide. One more addition to my bucket list, a great one, as a result of this Beautiful Book. I want to Thank the Photographer and Writer!0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Outstanding PhotographyBy olgeezerGreat pictures and history of otherwise unseen and little known private gardens in the DC area. Great for getting ideas to plan your backyard gardens from a visual prospective rather than a horticultural one.1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Great GuideBy Virginia FalconThough we'd visited many of the parks and gardens in the area of Washington, DC, this book offers photography and commentary that adds so much more to our experience. It even covers gardens that we'd never heard of, and now have on our "list." It contains beautiful photography and the narrative is very informative. Highly recommended.

Stunning photos and in-depth essays on more than 30 of Washington, D.C.'s gardens, some famous and other little-known gems, make this book a must-have for visitors and residents alike. Our nations capital is filled with famous gardens, such as Dumbarton Oaks, and little-known gems, such as Meadowlark Gardens. There are also small community gardens and spectacular celebrations like the National Cherry Blossom Festival, which will mark its centenary in 2012. All these gardens and parks are described and illustrated in Capital Splendor. Each of some 30 venues is addressed in detail, and essays include helpful information for making your visit as well as for identifying each garden's special features. Essays are accompanied by a series of photographs by renowned photographer Valerie Brown. This exceptional collaboration will make this stunning book a must-have for visitors and residents alike.
